TUCK'S POST CARD

CARTE POSTALE. POSTKARTE.

By Appointment.

Bath. General view from the top of Beechen Cliff, a steep cliff 370 feet high on the southern side of the town. Bath has been famous as a health resort since the time of the Romans, some historians even attributing the discovery of the virtues of its warm springs to a British prince, Bladud, about 890 B.C. The old Roman baths are still in existence, as also are many other relics of the noble city Aquæ Solis (waters of the sun)—which the conquerors of Britain founded here.
